"Did you not call on the policeman present to make any arrrests?"

"Yes."

"What was the result?"

"The policeman couldn't hear me. He seemed to be deaf."

Not one of these voters, he declared, seemed to have any physical disability. In answer to Judge Brown's question he said the only time he saw outsiders go into the rear room was with voters. He contradicted this afterwards, and said he saw men goin— in and out of the rear room through the hall doorway three or four at a time.

John McDonough, Republican captain of the Thirty-eighth Election District, was the next witness. He was not a voter in that district, having moved just previous to the election." What are your politics?" he was asked.

"Were they Deccrats?"
"I dor't know, ey all wore Tammany badges."
The witness said that hardly a voter went into the booths without being accompanied by one or more persons.
They came in both from the front and rear entrances. He described how the chairman had shuffled up the ballots of a colored voter, and had not put the one he selected into the ballot-box, but had changed it for another.
Not one of the persons who were accompanied into the booths was sworn as to his disability.

On cross-examination by Lawyer Delany the witness said he had not made any record of his protests and had no list of names. He thought he had done his duty when he appealed to the chairman and had been overruled.

At 12.30 the Committee took a recess, and when the hearing was resumed at 2 o'clock Lawyer Groo called Gustave Sliverstein, poli clerk in the Thirty-eighth Election District, to the witness stand.

No, but I told the Republican inspectro about it. He told me he could do nohting, because he didn't want to have his head opened."
William West, of 42 Eighth avenue, where the polling-place was located, in the cigar store, said he went into a booth to vote, and a man named Curly followed him in.
"He wanted me to vote for Maynard and the whole Democratic ticket, and I told him I was able to prepare my own ballot, and that I was a Republican."

Poil Clerk John Heyburn saw Schil-linger ar-und the Twenty-fifth Election District polling place all day long. He had also seen officers about the piace interfering with voters in polling precinct. Day'd Hammell of 32 West Thirty-sixth street, testified that he saw Schillinger stuff some paster ballots in a voter's overcoat pecket as he went in the door. He made complaint about this to the police officer, but the latter wouldn't pay any attention to him.

The Pifth Election District was then taken up and Thomas J. Holmes, the Republican Captain testified, that the polling-place was run by Pete and Patsy McCool, the Tammany Captains, and that they accompanied at least fifty-five voters into the booths.

dred and Twenty-fifth street and First avenue to One Hundred and Thirty fourth street and Willis avenue.

The Mayor was opposed to the bill when it was befout the Legislature last year, on the ground that there were bridges enough across the Harlem to accommodate all the traffic to the north side for years to come, and for the further reason that the city is building bridges that will cost $7,60,000.

Another reason for the Mayor's opposition was that the old bill ignored the Board of Estimate's authority except as to the issue of bonds for the work.

The present bill places the control of the work cattrely in the hands of the Board and the Commissioner of Public Works. The Board must approve the Board and the Commissioner of Public Works. As was shown in yeaterday's court proceedings, since the appointment of Mr. Platt as temporary receiver of the New England Railroad, a number of holders of the Company's securities have signed a petition to the Court, asking that Mr. Platt be made permanent receiver.

Among the signers was Russell Sage, who has a large interest in the bonde of the Company, which came into his possession when he and Jay Gould were actively interested in the road.

It was not generally known that Mr. Sage continued to hold these bonds, and the fact that he does explains the fact that Mr. Sage desires the appointment of Mr. Platt for permanent receiver.

The third ground upon which the motions are based," continued Justice Bartlett, "is that the indictments were found without authority or law, because the Court of Oyer and Terminer had no legal right to impanel an Extraordinary Grand Jury while the regular Kings County Grand Jury was in session.

In reply to this point Justice Bartlett quoted the law, showing that in Kings County three Grand Juries were authorized. This also disposed of the fourth ground upon which the motion was based, as that question was based upon the legality of the calling of the Extraordinary Court of Oyer and Terminer by Gov. Flower.

Another bill provides for the condoing the work. Mayor Gilroy said this afternooned never heard of the bill above

Mayor Gilroy said this afternoon he had never heard of the bill above referred to.

"Senator Cantor," said he, "might have deigned to consult the city authorities before introducing such a bill. I think it is premature for any Senator to introduce bills affecting our school system before the Commission appointed to revise and report on our school laws has reported." The reference to District School Commissioners is evidently a mistake. There are no District Commissioners. The Commissioners of Education, of whom there are twenty-one, are appointed for the whole city. They, in turn, appoint the Ward Trustees of Schools.

It is apparently the object of the author of the bill to divide the wards into equal territorial precincts. The Twelfth and Twenty-second Ward Trustees have jurisdiction now over as much territory as the Trustees of the other twenty wards on Manhattan Island combined. There are four trustees for some wards and five for others, and the present bill proposes a uniform number for each.

It Is Premature.

OBODY can find in this store to-day a line of garments that was made to sell last season. Strange, isn't it?

Next season it'll be the same way. We never keep a garment from one season to the next.

This is a settled policy with us, and although it entails a great loss at the end of each season we shall always do it -because it pays. The beginning of every season shall find this store, as long as it is a store, stocked with nothing but the newest and latest styles in the best of fabrics.

This winter's sale begins this morning.
